Hach Center for Regional Engagement hosts fall collaboration event October 14

Colorado is growing. And you can make a difference in how it grows.

The Hach Center for Regional Engagement, the flagship program of the Community Foundation of Northern Colorado, hosts Robert Grow at its virtual Hach Center fall event from 4:30 p.m. to 6:00 p.m., on Wednesday, October 14. The Hach Center invites residents of Larimer and Weld counties to engage in regional collaboration and explore how they can make a difference in shaping the future of Northern Colorado.

Robert Grow will share insights from his experience helping form then leading Envision Utah, a nonprofit that engages people in creating great communities for themselves and future generations. He will offer us a first-hand look at some of the practical tools that Envision Utah used to establish to assist rapidly changing communities positively influence growth in their state.

The Hach Center is designed to be a convener and catalyst, to productively leverage resources to address regional challenges. Please contribute your voice to building community capacity together, exploring opportunities for our region, and creating meaningful relationships.
